

Sustainability reporting GRI Certified 16-hour Training in Budapest

The Global Reporting Initiative (GRI)'s guidelines are the world's most widely used sustainability reporting disclosures.

The latest evolution of the guidelines the GRI Standard has should be used instead of the former G4 Guidelines for reports published after 1 July 2018.

---

Alternate Consulting, Hungarian representative of the GRI Certified Training Partner Schwery Consulting, is offering a regional training on reporting and the GRI Standard.

Sustainability Reporting - The GRI Standard 16-hour Training

The two-day "The GRI Standards" training is for organisation/individuals who either start reporting in line with GRI now, or have been using the previous guidelines but wish to have a comprehensive introduction to the new set of standards.

13-14th September 2018, Budapest

The course will give a detailed introduction to the new generation of GRI Standards and to Sustainability Reporting. Each training course is tailored to a local country/region, we use specific case studies and exercises to develop practical knowledge and competencies based on almost 20 years of reporting experience.

About the 16-hour training

Sustainability reporting helps organizations to become more responsible, accountable and contribute effectively to sustainable development; to engage with stakeholders and build corporate reputation. But to prepare and publish a report needs more than data, wording and editing.

The course helps reporters understand the value of reporting and, crucially, how to use the GRI Standards for their sustainability reporting processes.

The training provides a general overview on the reporting process and areas:

- starting with definitions, global and local trends (also regulation, e.g. EU mandatory reporting)
- the reporting process (what is reporting, how to measure sustainability, GRI principles and indicators), also
- concrete reporting dilemmas (printed or online, which target group, how to communicate it effectively, how to prioritize issues, how to engage internally and externally, etc.).

Former training participants evaluated the training practical, professional, creative and open minded. They gained everyday help to prepare their first report or develop existing practices.
